Scotch Parade, south of Catherine Avenue, Chelsea – Proposed Zebra Crossing

Background

In February 2019, Council consulted residents and the wider community about the safety of pedestrians crossing Scotch Parade at Catherine Avenue, close to the children's playground in Bicentennial Park.

Council undertook a study that confirmed the number of people crossing at this location warranted the installation of a zebra crossing (without flashing lights).

Council sought your feedback on the installation of the zebra crossing to improve safety – see map and example overleaf.

Council Action

The feedback received showed a high level of support for the proposed crossing. Council will therefore undertake detailed design for the zebra crossing with the aim of installation in the 2020/2021 financial year. The crossing will require changes to parking to comply with Victorian Road Rules, which prohibit parking within 20m of the approach and 10m of the exit of a pedestrian crossing (see attached plan).

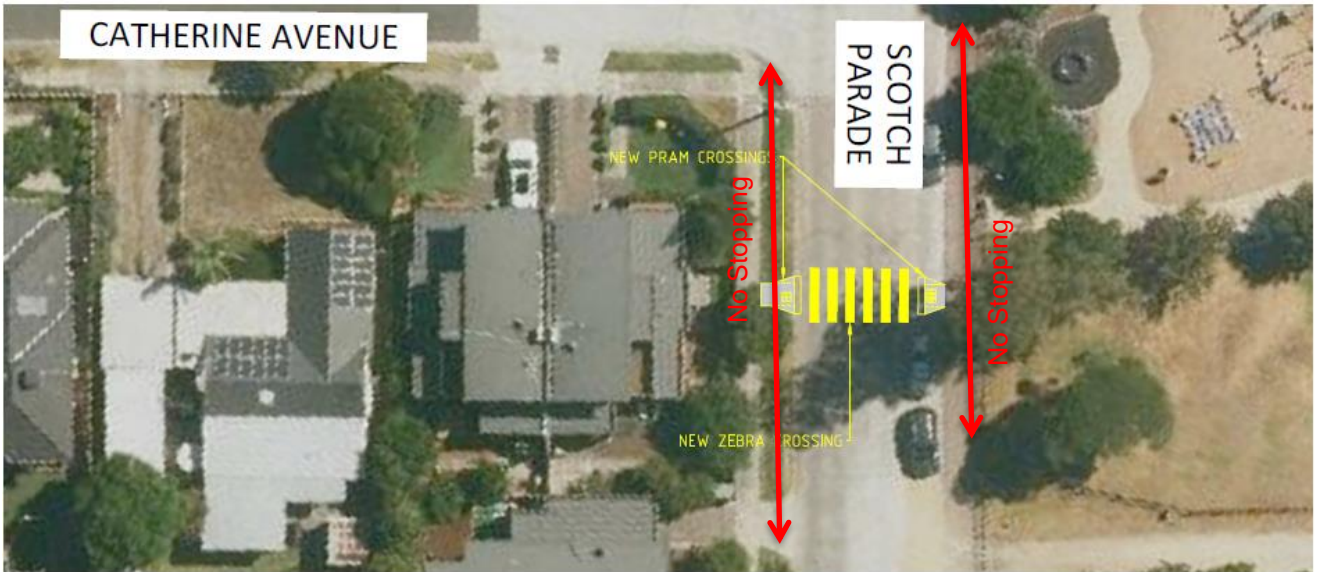

These traffic measures will help pedestrians safely cross Scotch Parade.

An update will be provided prior to construction.
